Reward offered for Temple construction site arsonists

PHILADELPHIA. Federal authorities and construction managers are offering a $15,000 reward for information that will lead to the capture of those responsible for arson at the construction site of Temple University's 27-story, $216 million residence tower. The fires caused $100,000 in damages. The Philadelphia Field Division of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives will contribute $5,000 and the L.F. Driscoll Company would contribute up to $10,000. Officials said the fires, which occurred on the 11th, 12th and 16th floors, were intentionally set between Monday and Tuesday. Bad alchemy: Man trades guns, gets drugs, DA says

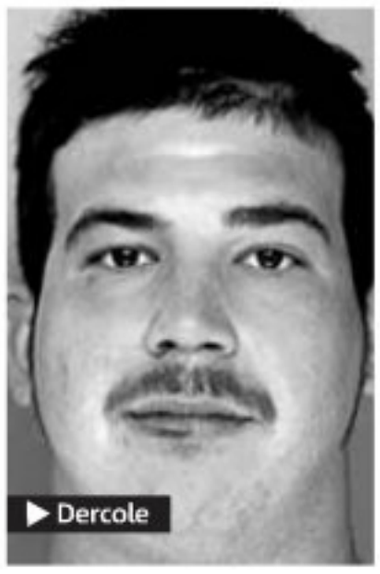
Prosecutors say grown man buys guns for 16-year-old boy in exchange for heroin Teen then uses one to shoot another teen



Dercole

Burak

A Northeast Philadelphia man has been arrested for allegedly buying four guns for a 16-year-old reputed drug dealer in exchange for heroin, District Attorney Seth Williams announced on Thursday.

"The fact that a grown man bought four different guns for a 16-year-old is unfathomable," Williams said. "That coupled with the harsh reality that the teen then used one of those guns to shoot another young man only cements the need for tougher penalties for straw purchasers in Pennsylvania."

Prosecutors said 32-year-old Luke Dercole bought four different guns for 16-year-old Michael Burak in October of 2012.

Burak allegedly used one of those guns to shoot 20-year-old Jonathan Espinosa on Oct. 28 inside an Oxford Circle home. He has been charged with attempted murder in connection with that case.

"Buying multiple guns for a minor, who then shoots another teen, is not only unacceptable – it is a tragedy," Pennsylvania Attorney General Kathleen Kane said. "This is an example of enforcing sensible laws against illegal gun trafficking."

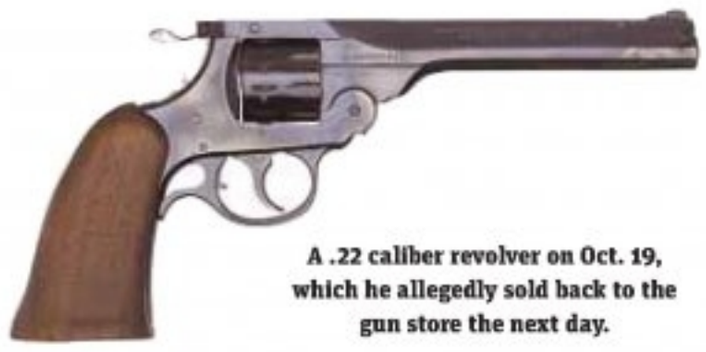
Quoted

"Buying multiple guns for a minor, who then shoots another teen, is not only unacceptable — it is a tragedy."

KANE

'Brad Fox Law' doesn't apply

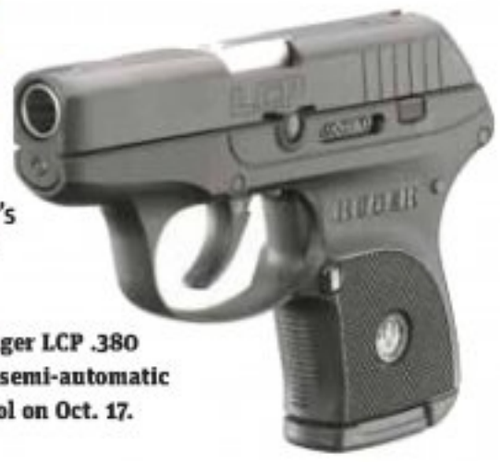
Though the "Brad Fox Law" now allows prosecutors to pursue tougher sentences for those accused of multiple straw purchases, officials said the statute doesn't apply in this case because Dercole allegedly bought the guns before December 2012. The law is named for a Plymouth Township Police Officer who was fatally shot by a man who got his guns from a straw purchaser.



A .22 caliber revolver on Oct. 19, which he allegedly sold back to the gun store the next day.

Have gun, will trade

Prosecutors allege that Dercole's illegal purchases include:



A Ruger LCP .380 caliber semi-automatic pistol on Oct. 17.

A .380 caliber Taurus semi-automatic pistol on Oct. 20. He exchanged that weapon for a different gun three days later.

A 9mm Glock semi-automatic pistol on Oct. 23. Burak allegedly used that gun to shoot Espinoza five days later.

Alex Wigglesworth
awigglesworth@metro.us

The charges

Dercole was arraigned overnight Thursday and is charged with:

- Illegal transfer
- Corruption of a minor
- Conspiracy
- Making false statements to authorities
- Tampering with public records
- Firearm offenses

He is currently being held on $500,000 bail and is next due in court on March 4.

Search and seize

Authorities said the investigation was launched after narcotics agents searching a Frankford Avenue home last month found a Glock 9mm semi-automatic pistol. Police were able to trace that gun back to Dercole and discovered it was one of four firearms he had purchased in October. Prosecutors said none of those guns were reported stolen or missing.

Dercole allegedly admitted in an interview with police that he bought the guns for 16-year-old reputed drug dealer Michael Burak in exchange for packets of heroin.

He allegedly made multiple purchases because Burak wasn't happy with the type of guns Dercole bought.

Warrant suggests more suspects in Del. courthouse shooting

GETTY IMAGES

▶ This courthouse was the scene of the crime.

According to a search warrant affidavit filed by Texas authorities, New Castle County Courthouse shooter Thomas Matusiewicz's wife Leonore and son David are now also suspects in the crime.

Monday morning's gunfire claimed the lives of David Matusiewicz's ex-wife Christine Belford and her friend Laura Mulvey, who were entering the building for a custody hearing regarding the three children Belford shared with David.

The affidavit to search Thomas Matusiewicz's Edcouch, Texas, home states that Thomas, Leonore and David Matusiewicz are all suspected of "intentionally and knowingly participating in a murder," though police said it was Thomas who pulled the trigger.

The affidavit further asserts that handwritten death certificates for Belford and her attorney were found on Thomas Matusiewicz's body after the gun battle, which also injured two police officers.

Police recovered eight guns from Matusiewicz's property and found five more firearms inside a storage unit.

Accusations

Investigators believe Leonore and David may have helped plot the slayings, according to the document.

Neither David nor Leonore has been arrested or charged in connection with Monday morning's shooting, though David is currently being held for alleged probation violations.

News in brief

City Council considers ads on city buildings

If a bill championed by City Council President Darrel Clarke is approved, corporations could have a shot at dressing up the William Penn statue above City Hall with their own logos and gear in an attempt by officials to raise money for the city.

The bill states advertising could be added on any city-owned properties, but Clarke said all signs would require City Council approval and a venue's historical significance will be considered.

Clarke says the city has "hundreds of municipally owned properties that are attractive to advertisers." He claims "tasteful" ads on city buildings can generate millions in revenue. He wouldn't say whether major city buildings, like City Hall, are off-limits.

Clarke is targeting bus shelters, information kiosks, trash receptacles and trucks, and public restrooms. METRO/TR

"I think having the city ... engaged in the process would actually enhance the ability to have it done tastefully." CLARKE

Women in Love Park put different spin on Valentine's

REKARD LARMA/METRO

▶ Women's Way members take to Love Park for a different message on V-Day.

Global group

One Billion Rising is a global day of anti-violence awareness-raising that this year saw participation from 182 countries. Events from around the world were streamed live to the One Billion Rising website.

Alex Wigglesworth
awigglesworth@metro.us

Members of victims advocacy nonprofit Women's Way and other anti-violence groups from around the city gathered in Love Park on Thursday for a Valentine's Day dance party. But they weren't celebrating the Hallmark-card meaning of the holiday.

"We decided to have a global event on love's day to take a stand against violence against woman and children," said Paula Paul of the Granny Peace Brigade, which also participated in the city's celebration of One Billion Rising.

"We decided to have a global event on love's day to take a stand. ... The 'V' in V-Day stands for 'Valentine's,' it stands for 'violence' and it stands for 'victory.'" PAUL

"One-third of women will be raped or beaten in their lifetime. That's 1 billion women, said Amanda Aronoff of Women's Way, calling for a show of solidarity with survivors across the globe.

"One billion women violated is an atrocity," she said. "One billion women dancing is a revolution."

Also in attendance were families and friends who lost loved ones, including those of slain young mother Melanie Colon and missing woman Franchesca Alvarado.

"It meant a lot to come out here and find so many commonalities, people that know what we're going through," said Kimberly Phan, who lost her friend to gun violence.

Pistorius charged with murder

JOHANNESBURG. South African "Blade Runner" Oscar Pistorius, a double amputee who became one of the biggest names in world athletics, was charged on Thursday with shooting dead his girlfriend at his upscale home in Pretoria. Police said they opened a murder case after a 30-year-old woman was found dead at the Paralympic and Olympic star's house in the Silverlakes gated complex on the capital's outskirts.

Pistorius, 26, and his girlfriend, model Reeva Steenkamp, had been the only people in the house at the time of the shooting, police brigadier Denise Beukes told reporters. Police said a 9mm pistol had been found at the scene. REUTERS

Crippled Gulf cruise nears end

MOBILE, ALA. More than 4,200 people trapped aboard the crippled cruise ship Carnival Triumph, having endured days of overflowing toilets, were due to return to land when tugboats haul the vessel into Mobile, Ala., late Thursday.

The 893-foot vessel, notorious for reports of raw sewage from overflowing toilets, has been without propulsion and running on emergency generator power since Sunday, when an engine-room fire left it adrift in the Gulf of Mexico. Operated by Carnival Cruise Lines, the ship left Galveston, Texas, a week ago carrying 3,143 passengers and 1,086 crew. REUTERS

SHIP OF STATE SET ADRIFT

Opinion

TOM FOREMAN
POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT FOR CNN

letters@metro.us

CNN=POLITICS

Many people love taking cruises. They prattle on endlessly about limbo contests and their favorite Hawaiian shirts (never mind that they are going to Cancun) and the endless shrimp bars. I, however, am not one of them. My skin crawls at the mere idea of being trapped on a ship with a few thousand strangers and a karaoke machine. "Hello, Dante? I have another circle for you."

The events of the past week have cemented my feelings. But I must say if the alternative is enduring another year of hearing how much Washington cares about the middle class, I may book a cabin and take my chances.

President Barack Obama swept up much of the "middle class" vote in the last election, and as he plowed through his State of the Union address this week, it was clear that he is not through with the subject. Time and again he has pledged his undying support to "the true engine" of the American economy, a "thriving, growing, rising middle class." The only problem is, those folks have not thrived, grown or risen much under his leadership, no matter how much they may like and trust him.

When Obama took office, about 133 million Americans were working. Today, about 1.2 million more people are employed. That's better than losing ground, but it's hardly the robust growth the middle class needs. On top of that, there's the problem of underemployment. A study at Rutgers University found more than half of people who lost jobs and then found new ones had to take pay cuts. I'm not putting all this at Obama's door. The downturn started under George W. Bush. What I am saying is that, for all the noise from politicians about how much they love the middle class, neither side seems to have any real ideas about how to help. It's as if the middle class is adrift on a disabled ship and all the parties are really doing is watching from shore.

I'm not putting all this at the president's door.

Pope: I'll hide from world

Pope Benedict XVI will see out his life in prayer, "hidden from the world," he said on Thursday in his first personal comment on his plans since he stunned Roman Catholics by announcing his retirement.

His remarks, in a voice that was hoarse at times, followed Monday's resignation notice, which spoke of "a life dedicated to prayer." The Vatican has said the 85-year-old German will live within its walls. His seclusion may allay concern that the first living former pope in centuries might trouble church unity. REUTERS

‘Lonerism’ for the masses

Tame Impala sing about sensations where it ‘Feels Like We Only Go Backwards’

But this psychedelic Aussie band seem to be going forward

Tame Impala play “Late Night” with Jimmy Fallon on Monday and play the Electric Factory in June.

MATT SAVILLE

On paper, a psychedelic band from Western Australia who call their latest album “Lonerism” don’t seem like the most likely candidates to be the biggest sensation in indie rock. But Tame Impala are selling out most of the shows on the tour they are about to begin, which is their biggest trek through the U.S. to date.

“Whenever there’s music where the lyrics are wearing your heart on your sleeve and talking about things that you don’t really talk to anybody about — which is really just kind of music in general — but whenever you’re doing it onstage, you just have that feeling that you’re connecting with other people in the world that feel the same way,” says singer, guitarist and songwriter Kevin Parker.

The music on “Lonerism” ranges from heavy to melodic to focused to spacey. Sometimes it’s all of those things in one song. What makes the album so exciting is that no structure is safe from being seriously messed with. The songs are all prone to either sudden unexpected explorations or abrupt endings. A vicious lead guitar might step forward into what a listener might think would be a solo, only to have the song end two seconds later. On the song “Keep On Lying,” a trippy organ and guitar interlude gives way to a party conversation that makes the listener feel like an observer who wants — but just isn’t able — to participate.

“I love the sound of something that makes you feel like you’re on drugs,” admits Parker when asked if he approves of the “stoner rock” title that his band is often tagged with.

But the song titles on “Lonerism” speak volumes for those who don’t speak much: “Music to Walk Home By,” “Why Won’t They Talk To Me?” and “Feels Like We Only Go Backwards” are just a few.

“It’s really an album about other people, or at least trying to interact with people,” says Parker. “I think the whole loner thing about the album is that, overall, the character realizes that he’s destined to be alone, from all of these interactions.”

PS 22, I love you

Parker says he has been surprised by how people have taken to the songs on “Lonerism,” in particular a group of school children from Staten Island whose moving reinterpretation of “Feels Like We Only Go Backwards” has racked up thousands of views online.

“It was pretty surreal,” says Parker of watching the PS 22 Chorus perform one of his songs. “It didn’t even feel like it was my song. It felt like the people doing the song, that whole thing that I was watching on the computer screen was bigger than the song, like I was covering their song. ... Kids can extract that pop element to it. It’s not that only kids can do it, but it’s that it can be taken out of it and you can leave behind the totally blown-out distorted drums and you can just make a nice little sing-along out of it that’s really uplifting.”

A closer look

Broken Mirrors

Tame Impala’s summer single, “Elephant,” features one of the most badass lines in recent rock memory. In the song, about an overconfident, but ultimately insecure man, Parker sings, “He broke the mirrors off his Cadillac, cuz he doesn’t like it looking like he looks back.”

Of that line, Parker does admit that it was on special reserve for a while.

“I don’t actually remember how I thought of it,” he says. “All I know is that I was driving home from the beach. I know where I was and it was long before I started writing lyrics for that song. I didn’t have a notebook, but I just remembered that rhyme. I didn’t even think it was going to fit. I had no idea how it was going to fit into a song. I then sort of sang it and put it into a sentence and it really seemed to fit well. It was one of those cosmic miracles with lyrics that don’t happen very often for me.”

▶ Bruce Willis, Jai Courtney and Sebastian Koch sport a few guns in "A Good Day to Die Hard," in theaters now.

YIPPEE-KI-YAY, WILLIS IS BACK

The star admits that the titles of the 'Die Hard' franchise are getting ridiculous ◐ 'I like seeing myself not be able to figure things out,' he says ◐ He reflects on a 25-year career playing the wisecracking John McClane

Bruce Willis is the first to admit that, five movies in, the titles of the "Die Hard" franchise are getting ridiculous. "We only do another 'Die Hard' when they have another really complicated title that no one quite understands," Willis jokes. "We had just gotten to where we understand [2007's] 'Live Free or Die Hard,' and then now we have 'A Good Day to Die Hard,' which, I have to be honest with you, I'm a little baffled still by that one."

Twenty-five years after the first "Die Hard" turned Willis from a funny TV guy into a bona fide action star, he's back as John McClane, the wisecracking New York cop who always manages to be in the wrong place at the wrong time. This time, that wrong place is Moscow, where he's tracking down his estranged son (Jai Courtney). "Moscow was really built for a couple of fish out of water like us. I can't imagine a bigger ocean of noncommunication than Eastern Europe and Russia," Willis says. "I don't speak any other languages really. We got a couple jokes out of that. ... I like seeing myself not be able to figure things out — not being able to figure out how the car works, not being able to figure out what someone is saying to me."

The genesis of 'Yippee-ki-yay'

It turns out possibly the most famous line of dialogue in Bruce Willis' career, "Yippee-ki-yay, motherf—er," wasn't even in the original "Die Hard" script. "It was an ad-lib," Bruce Willis says. "Alan Rickman was such a good bad guy, he was constantly picking on me. He said something to me and I just happened to let that line slip out and it became part of the fabric of the film. It's amazing to me that the line has lasted this long. Kids say it to me on the street. Grandmothers. It's a little awkward. But I'm happy that they say it."

The fourth film found McClane reconciling with his daughter (Mary Elizabeth Winstead), who has a small part here. With John Jr. featuring in this film, does that mean a sixth might reunite McClane and his wife, Holly, played by Bonnie Bedelia? "I always think of Bonnie Bedelia and having her coming back," Willis says. "Those things are unfortunately out of my hands." Bedelia, for her part, has been keeping busy on NBC's "Parenthood."

Willis is the fourth member of the "Expendables" team to hit theaters with a headlining film in 2013, following Arnold Schwarzenegger, Sylvester Stallone and Jason Statham. But Willis isn't concerned with how his latest stacks up against his colleagues'. "I wish everyone well," he says. "I'm still a big film fan. I still go to see other ac- tion films and ... comedies and all kinds of weird things. There is no competition."

▶ Scenic Siberia as seen in Werner Herzog's "Happy People: A Year in the Taiga," out today.

'Happy People: A Year in the Taiga'

The latest from Werner Herzog is, like "Grizzly Man," not a Herzog original but rather his own imprint on existing material. In this case it's a gutting of Dmitry Vasyukov's four-hour TV documentary about Siberia's perversely upbeat populace, cut down to a brisk 90 minutes and fitted with Herzog's signature contemplative (and sometimes amusingly loopy) commentary.

'West of Memphis'

If you've never seen any of the three "Paradise Lost" docs, then the next thing you should do is watch them. If you'd rather not commit upward of nine hours, you can get the gist from Amy Berg's film about the "West Memphis Three," a trio of one-time metalheads falsely accused of murder. Expository where the "Paradise Lost" versions are masterpieces of verite filmmaking, it's still a worthy look at a story that luckily has a happy ending. MATT PRIGGE

'Safe Haven' required risks from

Bringing a Nicholas Sparks book to life is a challenge Stars Julianne Hough and Josh Duhamel felt 'The Notebook' pressure

Former "Dancing with the Stars" champ Julianne Hough doesn't have a lot of big-screen experience that doesn't rely on her dance background, so after "Burlesque," "Footloose" and "Rock of Ages," she was ready for a challenge.

"Yeah, I left the dancing and the singing outside," she says of her new film, "Safe Haven," a romantic thriller based on the novel by Nicholas Sparks. "For me it [meant] going to an acting coach and getting more training. It was definitely a lot more heartfelt and personal."

Her role — a woman on the run from an abusive past who finds solace with a widower (Josh Duhamel) in a small North Carolina town — also required her to take on some pretty heavy issues related to domestic violence. "It's a big responsibility to do it right," Hough says. "If somebody has gone through that, it feels real and honest for them. I talked to women at shelters, I know friends of family, my own experiences — but at the same time it was such a safe environment to do it in."

"It's a big responsibility to do it right. If somebody has gone through that, it feels real and honest for them."

HOUGH, ON PORTRAYING A VICTIM OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE IN "SAFE HAVEN"

She did get to draw on her dancing background for some scenes. "We had a stunt woman — but these guys will tell you, there's no way I was gonna let them do that," she says of some of the flashbacks of her character's abuse. "This is fun to me. It's like dancing. It's choreography. I did get hurt a little bit, but I didn't tell anybody."

For her co-star, filming "Safe Haven" introduced a new luxury: two weeks of prep time on location before shooting started. "I was like, 'Really, what am I gonna do for two weeks?'" Duhamel says. "But it was great because I really got to soak in the local environment and think about what I wanted to do in this movie. By the time we started shooting I felt like I

The Sparks pressure

"Safe Haven" marks the eighth Nicholas Sparks romance novel to be made into a film, from 2002's "A Walk to Remember" to last year's "The Lucky One." But it's his hugely successful second film adaptation, "The Notebook," that moviegoers remember most. And that can put a lot of pressure on the romantic leads of a new one, something Julianne Hough and Josh Duhamel are all too aware of.

"There is a lot of pressure to live up to the success of these previous movies, but we try not to think about that," Duhamel says. "If I tried to do what Ryan Gosling did in 'The Notebook' I'd be pulling my hair out. If we try and replicate that in any way, it's a trap." And Hough agrees completely. "I am the demographic of Nicolas Sparks books," she says. "I loved 'The Notebook,' but this was our version of what this story is."

was this dude. I wish that I always had the luxury of getting there that early and becoming part of the local environment."

Of course, being a small-town boy at heart, feeling like part of that environment wasn't too difficult. "I grew up in a state full of little towns like that," the North Dakota native says. "It's sort of in my blood. I love New York, but that's too much for me. That town just swallowed me up. I'd probably prefer a smaller town ... like Los Angeles. It's a whole bunch of little villages next to each other."

Playing it 'Safe'

'Safe Haven'
Genre: Romantic thriller
Director: Lasse Hallstrom
Stars: Josh Duhamel and Julianne Hough
Rating: PG-13
Grade: ●●○○○

Josh Duhamel and Julianne Hough are likeable enough, but this eighth adaptation of a Nicholas Sparks-authored heart flutterer won't find a safe haven from discerning audiences. Simply put, it's the tale of a woman who seeks sanctuary in a sleepy town and falls for the local widower while her psychotic hubby hunts her down. Veteran filmmaker Lasse Hallstrom ("Dear John") does his best to mold the melodrama but "Safe Haven" is still mostly stale and unmistakably safe storytelling. ● STEVE GOW

Nick Stuccio co-founded the Philadelphia Fringe Festival in 1997 and has since emerged as the leader of the arts organization, even rebranding it in 2004 as the Philadelphia Live Arts Festival and Philly Fringe.

Stuccio's vision has always been to make Live Arts a major player on the global arts scene. But he was always limited to an annual two-week run in September. Until now.

While the fall fest will remain the backbone of Live Arts, this weekend Stuccio is launching his first stab at year-round programming, with the Seinendan Theater Company presenting "Robot-Human Theater." Based in Japan, Seinendan collaborated with Osaka University's Intelligent Robotics Laboratory to create two short plays featuring both robot and human actors.

"We're convinced there's a market for this kind of work year-round. We should know. We've spent the last 15 years developing the audience," Stuccio says. "As Philadelphians, we think we damn well should be able to see the very best art in the world."

"As Philadelphians, we think we damn well should be able to see the very best art in the world." NICK STUCCIO

Presenting all year could help lure international companies on a cheaper scale, as Live Arts hopes to become a can't-miss destination for international tours. The shows will typically arrive self-contained and, eventually, be performed in Live Arts' 240-seat theater, due to be completed in September.

"We think this is going to open up opportunities for local artists as well. The stakes have become so high for Live Arts. To get a gig on that platform is really hard these days," says Stuccio. "We're going to have many more avenues to get folks presented."

▶ Get your Beyonce fill with her new documentary.

'Beyonce: Life Is But a Dream'

DOCUMENTARY. This hotly anticipated 90-minute film stars Beyonce in a feature that she also produced and co-directed. It's being marketed as an intimate look at the singer's life, which will certainly please the horde of Beyonce disciples that now run the world. We wish there was more Jay-Z and less concert footage, but watch if for no other reason than to catch a brief glimpse of little Blue Ivy Carter in action. Saturday, 9 p.m., Premiere, HBO

'Downton Abbey'

DRAMA. We'll see a slight time jump as Season 3 comes to a close. The finale finds the clan heading to a Scottish hunting lodge, Ms. Patmore catching the eye of an eligible bachelor and both Carson and Ms. Hughes taking care of little Sybil. Sunday, 8 p.m., Season finale, PBS

'Spontaneous Construction'

REALITY. The odd premise of this new home-design series sounds vaguely promising. Each episode features a flash mob that descends upon homeowners' yards and then sticks around to do some serious redecorating. Friday, 8 p.m., Series premiere, HGTV

NY Fashion Week diary

WEDNESDAY. FEB. 13

10:20 a.m.

The Michael Kors show is ridiculously packed, with a gang of latecomers standing at the entrance by the photographers' pit since it's too late to get to their seats. One of the security guards is drunk with power and obnoxiously yelling at the group, which includes girl-of-the-moment Miroslava Duma. I scan the rest of the room. Finally! A starry front row. Zoe Saldana, Hilary Swank, Michael Douglas, Jada Pinkett Smith and Willow Smith are all here.

Trains have been all over the runway this week, and they look like the sexy big sister to the skirts-over-trousers trend that made the rounds last year. Michael Kors uses the idea to cleverly reinvent the little black dress, each coming down the runway with dramatic clementine and royal-blue skirts attached that dip low and sweep the floor in the back. It's a dressy moment in an overall surprisingly sporty show. But Michael Kors is at his best when he's designing glamorous things. As a result, the more athletic pieces (tailored, yellow track pants and a shimmery, slouchy sweater, for example) read a little awkward, like the ritzy lady who wears a tad too much makeup to the gym.

▶ Checking in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

Today, Ellen DeGeneres is making things uncomfortable, Ron Howard is geeking out, Samantha Ronson forgot to set her DVR and Seth MacFarlane is keeping it classy.

Is Alexa Ray Joel slowly morphing into Minka Kelly?

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Joel in 2011

▶ Kelly

Pictures popped up recently of Alexa Ray Joel, the 27-year-old spawn from the famous union between "Uptown Girl" Christie Brinkley and Billy Joel, looking a little, well, suspicious. But don't listen to what your head is telling you (and I know your head is screaming "plastic surgery!"). No, listen to what Brinkley has to say about her daughter's changing looks.

The former supermodel went on "Anderson Live" on Thursday to defend her daughter saying her transformed appearance isn't from a doctor, but rather she's "blossomed so stunningly."

"She's stepping out into the world, she's doing things and now [her critics] can't even accept it — it's like, 'Oh she's too beautiful, she bought it all, it's all plastic surgery,'" she said. Brinkley says the only surgery Joel has ever "bought" is "a little tweak of her nose."

This whole thing is totally Freud-worthy (it must be rough to have Christie Brinkley as your mother, no matter how cute you are), but since this is a gossip column and not a graduate-lovel course on psychotherapy, let's just say that if I were Minka Kelly, I'd be slightly disturbed.

Perry breaks off friendship from Rihanna

Rihanna has received her share of criticism for reuniting with Chris Brown, who was arrested for assaulting her in 2009. And it turns out the rekindled romance is even costing her some friendships. Rihanna and Katy Perry "aren't tight anymore because Katy doesn't approve of Rihanna dating Chris Brown," a source tell Us Weekly. Perry and beau John Mayer reportedly steered clear of Rihanna and Brown at the Grammys last weekend.

More likely: Mayer probably boinked Rihanna at some point as well.

Imagine Dragons singer says his top influences include the forefathers of pop rock and his own father ◑ Don't call them an overnight success

'NIGHT VISIONS' AND 'HOOKY MUSIC'

Dan Reynolds, singer for Imagine Dragons, quotes some decidedly odd influences. Odd because the band's debut, "Night Visions," is packed with emotional and confessional lyrics, catchy hooks and anthemic choruses that suggest a diet of Muse and Coldplay. But he says it goes a bit further back, to two other groups from England.

"We all grew up listening to the Beatles and the Rolling Stones and studied their work," confirms Reynolds. The Las Vegas native is speaking from London during a promo jaunt.

"I don't know where it comes from, really," he continues. "We wrote 150 demos for this album and narrowed it down to 100, then down to 50, and then down to 20. We really wanted the album to be a cohesive body of work. We wanted each song to flow into the next with a general theme. I can't say why it's hooky. Maybe we like hooky music."

Perhaps the post-emo thrust of "Night Visions" is

Dragons pay their dues

Imagine Dragons' amazing success places them on their first-ever headlining North American tour this winter, and they'll be playing larger venues than most rookie bands. Before anyone scoffs "overnight success," Reynolds says Imagine Dragons paid their dues.

"We've been a band for four years. We played everywhere. We did a six-hour show in front of drunken gamblers on the Strip. No band does that. We've definitely worked our way up from nowhere."

REID ROLLS

the result of condensing pent-up emotions and three years of writing into one record. Maybe, for Reynolds, it goes back even further.

"I've always written," he says. "It was always a bit of a diary, a journal for me. I would never show anyone the songs but my dad. I always wanted to see what he thought. My dad was one of my biggest influences, growing up — [as was] the music he liked, whether it was Paul Simon, Billy Joel or the Beach Boys. I always wanted to impress my dad."

So, did Reynolds Sr. approve?

"Always," says the younger Reynolds. "He is just the biggest fan. That, to me, is everything. I've always written for myself, but, growing up, there was nothing that made me happier than when my dad was proud of something I did."

Romance

It's still kind of Valentine's Weekend, so how about a romantic playlist that doesn't pander with fluff like "Love Me Tender"? If you really want that special someone to love you tender, fire up the playlist at www.songza .com/listen/romance-by-guitar-TacticCo. Great music sometimes only requires one great guitarist. A pretty melody in beautiful harmony with six strings can be as powerful as a full orchestra. Enjoy these classic guitar works, perfect for an intimate dinner party for two. It's also perfect for an intimate bed party for two afterward, with guitarists like Los Romeros and Julian Bream.

— Songza is a streaming platform that mines years of music history and today's music blogs for the best gems, so you don't have to. The company offers thousands of playlists for free on the Web, iPhone and iPad. Each week Metro teams up with Songza to bring you fun new playlists.

Just check out the sexy look that Julian Bream is giving you. Hard to argue with that!

It really takes three to Tengo

Ira Kaplan on the latest Yo La release ◗ Their last-minute lyrics may or may not tell a story, but the songs probably are 'talking to each other' ◗ Come for the quiet tunes, stay for the loud ones

As Yo La Tengo close in on 30 years as a band, the trio has secured their name as one of the most beloved and longstanding survivors in indie rock. Beginning in 1984, and based around the husband and wife harmonies of founding members Ira Kaplan and Georgia Hubley, the addition of James McNew in the early '90s put the band in a unique position, where each of the members was now a potential singer and songwriter, making their music all the more diverse.

They've scored films, appeared on numerous compilations and even dared to take their already underground following to more obscure levels by creating a garage rock cover band known as Condo F—s.

With the recent release of "Fade," their 13th official LP as Yo La Tengo, they seem to have created one of their most thematic and introspective records to date. Beginning with the lines: "Sometimes the bad guys come out on top/Sometimes the good guys lose/We try not to lose our hearts/Not to lose our minds," you get the sense that this is an album dealing with maturity and a search for answers.

And though the feeling seems to continue on throughout the record, according to the band, the theme may not have been conscious at all.

"I probably would say it's not true," says singer and guitarist Kaplan. "But I could be lying. Although the songs are written over a year, the lyrics are not. The lyrics are written very quickly. We tend to sing along in a sort of nonsense kind of way and even record the songs without lyrics and at the last second come up with them. I think because of the speed and the concentrated space in which the lyrics are written, the songs end up talking to each other. But in no way is there a plan. It just sort of takes shape the way it does, organically, not with a concept put behind it."

CARLIE ARMSTRONG

'Fade'-ing in

Many jazz musicians appear on "Fade," expanding Yo La Tengo's stylistic and dynamic range, and as a result, the music is softer. But even that is put into question for the live show.

"Sometimes we're also not the best judge of those types of things," says Kaplan. "Maybe certain things jump out more than others. What we are doing on this show, though, is extremely different. We'll essentially be our own opening act. So we do a first set of quieter songs and then the second set is louder."

Quoted

"Although the songs are written over a year, the lyrics are not. The lyrics are written very quickly."

Chef reinvents a Mt. Airy classic

Adam Glickman is confident Center City dwellers will venture out to Goat Hollow

Hot Chef

Chef Adam Glickman, head of the new Goat Hollow kitchen, is bringing a world of Philly food experience with him. After years of cooking at the beloved Monk's Cafe, followed by some time at Jose Pistola's, Glickman is taking what he's learned and applying it to Mount Airy's new version of an old favorite. The original Goat Hollow closed nearly a decade ago — and while the name remains the same, Glickman and company are making some serious changes.

The new Goat Hollow is completely different from the original, right?

Yes, totally different. The owners [Neil Campbell and Andy Shahan] reinvented this place. This is an American brasserie. There are French and Belgian items on the menu, plenty of American food, and a great beer selection.

I heard there's going to be a campfire with the outdoor seating.

It's a possibility. There may be a raw bar or outdoor kitchen. It morphs.

That's the good thing about a new place, you can play around with ideas.

Oh yeah, absolutely.

You used to work at Monk's and then Jose Pistola's. Is this a new challenge?

I worked at Monk's for over nine years and learned so much. And Jose Pistola's was great because I love the owners. This is a challenge that keeps me busy.

▶ Adam Glickman runs the kitchen at Goat Hollow.

How do like working in Mount Airy?

I love the neighborhood. The diversity and the people. I lived here for six years. I can see myself moving back.

What do you do on your day off?

There's no such thing. Or at least it feels that way. When I have a day off, I spend time with my daughter. She's a restaurant kid, so she's got good taste. But she also has expensive taste.

Julia West

Q&A

Do you think city dwellers will come to Mount Airy for this?

I hope so! Yes, I think people will come from Philly. This area is diverse, as is our menu.

Horoscope

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Heed your hunches if you come up with some bright idea regarding a way to multiply your resources. Your instincts involving your financial interests will be right on point.

Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Because you'll view certain situations realistically and not though rose-colored glasses, you'll accomplish much. Just try to keep your eyes on the prize.

Aries March 21-April 19. When going up against another, be it in business or sport, you'll have a bit more to draw upon than will your opponent. This slight but critical difference gives you the edge over other competitors in the field.

Taurus April 20-May 20. Viewing things in positive terms will give you the advantage over most opponents. It will be the critical factor you need to succeed.

Gemini May 21-June 20. If the stakes captivate your interest, you will show an impressive motivation to succeed. Drive strongly for the hoop.

Cancer June 21-July 22. You're not likely to be afraid of making snap decisions, due to your strong faith in your judgment. First thoughts will be best thoughts.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22. You have a great aptitude for sorting out the problems of others and helping them repair their affairs. You'll be able to unravel what was unsolvable to many.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Get involved in activities today that help stimulate you mentally as well as physically. You'll discover being actively motivated will feel like you aren't pushing yourself hard at all.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. If you believe conditions involving your work can be improved, take it upon yourself to make the necessary moves. Don't wait for others to do something about it first.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Temporarily set aside your material wants and needs, and instead focus on your social life. Surprisingly, this might be where your greatest opportunities reside.

Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Don't allow any situation to hang fire if it has an effect on your finances. Matters can be concluded to your satisfaction by putting forth the necessary effort.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Since your greatest attributes are likely to be your leadership qualities, it's highly likely that you'll instinctively know how to get what you and others want. Do so.

Whatever your faith, be humble

Three years ago it was predicted that the next pope would be an African in order to bulk up the Roman Catholic denomination which has been decimated by the corruption within its priestly ranks around the globe and its dishonest denial and coverup.

It is well recognized that the birthplace of religion/spirituality (Africa) produces very fervent committed souls to whatever religion/spiritual development system in which they are or to which they become involved, e.g., Christianity, Islam, Judaism, Jehovah's Witnesses, Mormonism, Buddhism, Ifa/Orisa Santeria, Candomble, Voodoo, Wicca, ad infinitum.

This is due to the fact that they recognize that the energy force most commonly called "God" is within them all.

There is no one that is right for everyone and there is no one that is wrong if that is the one to which one's soul leans for guidance and development.

We generally have forgotten that "God" created this world and everyone and everything in it.

Much less ego and much more submission to the Creator's plan would vastly improve mankind's earthly existence.

Sure, let's side with the killer

RE: "FUGITIVE EX-COP BELIEVED DEAD AFTER GUN BATTLE, FIRE" (METRO, FEB. 14) I couldn't believe my ears and eyes as I watched CNN's coverage of former LAPD officer Christopher Dorner's demise.

There were people who actually sympathized with this vicious cop-killer and blasted the LAPD for using incendiary tear gas to put and end to this horrific episode.

The bleeding hearts are going to ruin our way of dealing with cold-blooded killers as they side with them and criticize law enforcement methods. In this case,

I think the LAPD acted properly in doing whatever it took to stop Dorner from inflicting further mayhem on police officers and their families as he vowed to do.

City embracing hoops fever as tourney nears

◗ La Salle, Temple, Villanova eyeing tickets to Big Dance ◗ Saint Joseph's not out of the mix ◗ Penn, Drexel will need very strong finishes

Before the season started, it seemed feasible to believe that four teams among the City Six — or Big Five, plus one — could earn a berth in the coveted NCAA tournament.

Those four were Saint Joseph's, Drexel, La Salle and Temple. Villanova and Penn didn't seem to be in the mix at all.

Fast forward and it appeared that no team would be repping Philadelphia in the Big Dance, something that hasn't happened since 1977. In mid-November, La Salle lost at home to Central Connecticut State. A month later, Temple was beaten by Canisius at the Liacouras Center. Then Saint Joseph's lost to Fairfield at Hagan Arena. Drexel, an NCAA lock before the season began, struggled mightily with home losses to Towson, Northeastern and Rider. And Villanova was dropped at home by Columbia. (Yes, Columbia.)

But it all changed with a crazy week.

Villanova defeated No. 5 Louisville and No. 3 Syracuse in the same week. La Salle, which hasn't been to the Big Dance since 1992, downed No. 9 Butler and No. 19 VCU.

Amazing.

What it also proves is that basketball in this city wasn't as bad as many previously thought.

Fast forward to today, and La Salle, Villanova, Temple are all in the tournament discussion. Saint Joseph's is on the outside, but hardly eliminated. Penn is virtually out, as it continues to struggle through a difficult season — unless the Quakers rally with an unlikely run through the Ivy League.

One team out of the City Six will likely wind up in the tournament. Wouldn't it be something special to see three or four in the field of 68?

Fast forward a little more to Selection Sunday and we'll find out. It should be a fun ride.

Andy Jasner

Track record

Here is a review of the city's recent success:

- La Salle Hasn't been to NCAAs since 1992, when it lost in first round to Seton Hall
- Temple Has advanced to five straight NCAAs under Fran Dunphy
- Saint Joseph's Hasn't been to Big Dance since 2008, when it lost in the first round to Oklahoma
- Villanova Missed NCAAs last season, but had appeared in seven consecutive prior to that, including a Final Four run in 2009
- Penn Searching for first berth since 2007
- Drexel Looking for first berth since 1996

MJ picks Kobe over LeBron

Michael Jordan, the greatest basketball player of all time, weighed in on the Kobe Bryant vs. LeBron James debate Thursday.

Jordan, in an interview with NBA TV, declared that he would take Bryant over James in a very tight race between the two best players in the NBA today.

"Five beats one every time I look at it," Jordan said, referring to Bryant's championship rings. "And not that [James] won't get five. He may get more than that, but five is bigger than one."

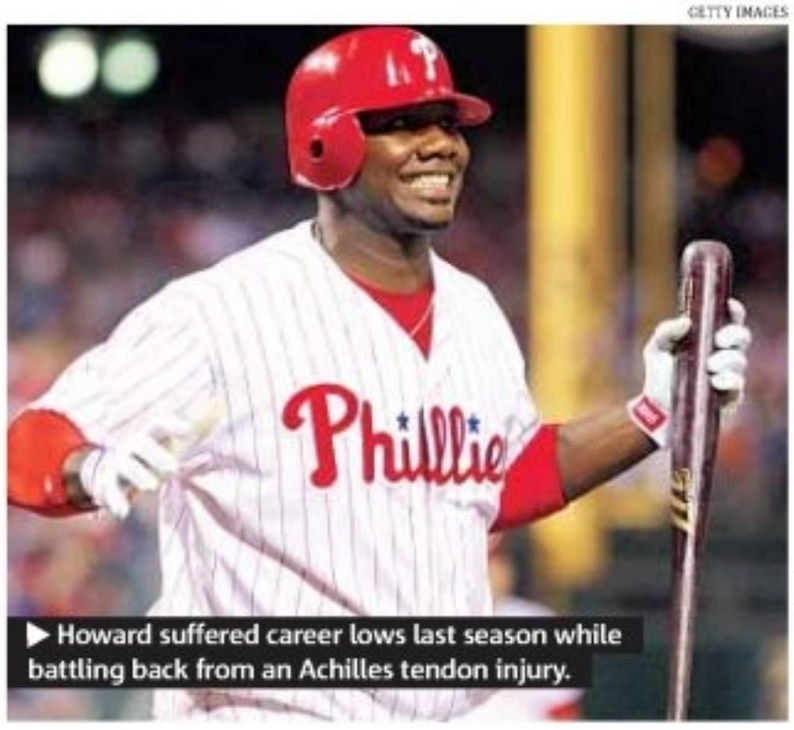
CARFAX VEHICLE HISTORY REPORTS

Howard: Window not yet closed on Phillies

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Howard suffered career lows last season while battling back from an Achilles tendon injury.

As Phillies spring training gets into full swing (no pun intended — well, maybe), another veteran coming off a disappointing, injury-riddled season stepped to the podium and assured everyone that he was fine.

Ryan Howard addressed the masses Thursday, and he was walking without a limp.

"My Achilles is a non-factor," Howard told reporters in Florida. "It was really a non-factor when I came back last year. It was more about building up the muscles in the rest of my leg again. I'm taking this offseason to do that, and it feels a lot better."

Howard entered the 2012 season with a myriad of problems, all stemming from his final at-bat of the 2011 season. The hulking slugger was rehabbing after tearing his Achilles tendon, then endured an infection last spring. Howard never fully recovered, and when he finally returned to the Phillies' lineup on July 6, he wasn't himself.

He turned in career lows in batting average (.219) and slugging percentage (.423), while striking out at an alarming rate. The injury drastically affected his once-majestic swing. Howard isn't worried about the physical part anymore; now it's about fixing his mind-set.

"I have to trust myself, trust my ability, and let it fly," Howard said. "I just have to let the inner me come out at the plate and be relaxed." METRO

Window open

Many analysts think the Phillies' window of opportunity for winning another title has closed. Don't tell Ryan Howard.

"There is a window of opportunity, but if you focus on the window closing, then you never let that cool breeze come in. For us, the window closes when the window closes, but right now the window is still open," Howard said.

Eagles add Dixon to QB competition

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Dixon

The Eagles' quarterback situation just got a lot more interesting.

The team signed Dennis Dixon to a two-year contract Thursday, just a few days after restructuring Mike Vick's deal. Dixon spent last season as a member of the Ravens' practice squad. He has only played in four career NFL games.

"We are excited to bring in Dennis Dixon to compete at the quarterback position," said GM Howie Roseman. "Dennis is a veteran in this league that has been a part of two Super Bowl-winning teams in his career. He's also very familiar with Chip Kelly and how he operates."

Dixon, who starred for Chip Kelly while at Oregon, set a school record for a quarterback when he rushed for 1,208 yards in 2007. He also threw for 2,136 yards that season. Dixon, 28, finished his college career with 6,337 total yards and 38 passing touchdowns.

According to a CSNPhilly.com report, Dixon will be given an opportunity to win the starting job. He'll have to beat out veteran Mike Vick and second-year pro Nick Foles.

"There is an open competition. Michael knows that. Nick knows that," Kelly said Monday.

Orange and Black try to finish up trip strong

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Brodeur shut out the Flyers back on Jan. 13.

It's been more than a year since the Flyers trekked up the Turnpike and beat the Devils. They have been getting pitchforked ever since, including an unexpected, five-game thrashing in the second round of last year's playoffs.

The longest road trip of the season continues Friday night in Newark, where Martin Brodeur shut them out 3-0 on Jan. 13 — it was the 10th time in his 120 career shutouts that he's blanked the Orange and Black. It also marked the Flyers' fourth straight loss at Prudential Center, including two games in the playoffs.

From Newark the Flyers head straight to Montreal Saturday before wrapping up with the Islanders and Penguins.

Assuming they can hold their own over that stretch, things figure to turn their way when they open a five-game homestand. The team will play 20 of their remaining 32 games here.

Perhaps somewhere in that stretch they'll get Andrej Meszaros back from the shoulder injury that has sidelined him for 10 games. On Thursday, the 27-year-old defenseman skated with his teammates for the first time since going down. He wore a yellow "non-contact" jersey.

"It's definitely frustrating," said Meszaros, who didn't play during the lockout. "The focus for me was to get healthy and start the season on time. To come out after four games, it's frustrating and bad luck."

But the Flyers could welcome back Sean Couturier as early as Friday night. He missed the past two games with the flu.

Even better would be the reemergence of Claude Giroux as a scoring threat. The new captain has only one goal in the last 12 games, with teams making it a point to focus on him. Danny Briere has only two goals in his 10 games back.

††HOW IT WORKS: For any denim purchase you make in misses', petites', women's, men's, young men's, juniors' and kids' denim departments, we'll give you a $10 Savings Card at the register. Just bring your receipts from 2/12-2/18/13 to any Macy's before end of day 2/18/13. You'll get a $10 Savings Card right on the spot. Then redeem each card from 2/12-2/26/13 on your next sale or clearance purchase in all apparel depts., including shoes and accessories. EXCLUDES: fine and fashion jewelry, watches, home items, Everyday Values (EDV), gift cards, previous purchases, super buys, specials, special purchases, special orders, selected licensed depts., services, macys.com, payment on credit accounts. Cannot be combined with any savings pass/coupon, extra discount or credit offer, except opening a new Macy's account. Dollar savings are allocated as discounts off each eligible item, as shown on receipt. When you return an item, you forfeit the savings allocated to that item. This coupon has no cash value and may not be redeemed for cash, used to purchase gift cards or applied as payment or credit to your account. Purchase must be $10 or more, exclusive of tax and delivery fees.
